Critics Slam Trump’s Plan to Fill Federal Government With “Political Cronies”

The largest federal labor union in the U.S. said Friday that tens of thousands of federal workers could soon “have their jobs politicized” and be swiftly fired under a new rule proposed by the Office of Personnel Management. Under the rule, an estimated 50,000 career civil servants would be reclassified as “at-will” employees, removing civil service protections and making it easier for the... Source

Trump push to make firing federal workers easier could affect 50,000 employees

More governmental employees may lose their jobs soon as President Donald Trump is moving forward with a plan to make it easier to fire federal workers and replace them with those loyal to his policies. On Friday, the White House published a fact sheet detailing a new rule that the Office of Personnel Management proposed. The proposed rule, named Schedule Policy/Career, would reclassify certain workers as at-will employees and strip them of prior ...

Trump moves to invoke Schedule F to make it easier to fire thousands of federal workers

President Donald Trump has begun making one of the controversial personnel changes for government employees that was spelled out in the conservative Project 2025 blueprint for his second term. He's starting the process of reclassifying 50,000 federal employees under what's known as Schedule F, which can make civil servants into political appointees or other at-will workers, who are more easily dismissed from their jobs. That means they'll have l...
